

Keep Trying

Even If It's Hard

Many times, you will have to do things that are hard. Maybe it's your homework, studying for an upcoming test, or chores that you really don't like to do. Doing things that are hard is something we all have to face, and this game will help. It will help you think of different strategies to complete a task, no matter how challenging it may be.

Game Instructions

The goal of this game is to be the first person to win 10 points by completing a difficult task.

What You Need

- 2 coins
- Gameboard (p. 2)
- A die (use one from another game or make your own using the next page)
- Scorecard

How to Play

1. The youngest player starts and describes a difficult task they are working on. Both players will focus on this task when they answer questions about obstacles. Then, they roll the die.
2. Players can move their coin in any direction that will earn them the most points. They can move horizontally or vertically, but not diagonally.
3. Record the points for each player on the scorecard on page 4.
4. When players reach an obstacle, they must describe a way to overcome that obstacle and continue working. They earn 2 points for their answer.
5. When players have at least 5 points, they can try to reach the finish line and earn an additional 5 points.
6. The first person to earn 10 points wins.
7. At the end of the game, take a few minutes to discuss ways to keep working even when it's hard to do.
